South Central Medical And Resource Center Recieves Grant

South Central Medical and Resource Center was one of 126 organizations selected in March to receive a federal grant award as a Community Health Center (CHC). Community Health Centers are our nation's safety net providers, particularly in rural areas where access to health care may be limited. CHCs are patient-centered medical homes that offer high quality primary and behavioral health care services to everyone, including those with Medicaid, Medicare, commercial insurance or no insurance. For self pay patients, rates are adjusted based on income and family size.

South Central Medical is a Non-profit (501c3) organization and is owned and governed by a Board of Directors made up of local community members. "The CHC program emphasizes community ownership," according to CEO Melissa Busby. "Our board is a group of local folks concerned about the availability of health care in Lindsay. This grant award is something the board has been working toward for several years, and being part of this program insures that we will continue to have quality, affordable health care right here in our community."

Pikes Peak Grand Opening Held

The Pikes Peak School grand opening Saturday, April 18, 2009 was well attended with more than 100 people registered as guests. Museum displays of class school pictures and family pictures of those who lived in the Pikes Peak Community attracted the interest of those attending. Many stayed several hours looking at the displays and exchanging stories of their shared experiences of old school days. They enjoyed the fellowship and refreshments while sitting in the school desk where some may have sat when they attended school at Pikes Peak. Forty-one of these were from out of town and seventeen were former students who attended school there before it closed in 1958.

Donations of old school books and other items received continue to offer even more ways to claim memories from the past. The museum recently received the donation of a 48 Star American Remembering Pikes Peak. Leta (Wood) DeSpain and Marvin Rice were both pupils at Pikes Peak School. They share memories with Syleasta Harris Durham.

THE OBAMA GARDEN

The Obama garden outside the White House has drawn much media attention. We have watched the Obama family as they dug in the ground, planted vegetables, and talked about what would grow there. The First Lady and the First Daughters are excited at the prospect of growing some of their own food. The idea is admirable. They are doing a small part in aiding the economy and conserving food. Even Bo, the new First Dog, has observed the operation with interest. Perhaps he will do some digging of his own. The White House Victory Garden brings back memories of World War II when people all across America grew Victory Gardens to help the war effort.

During World War II, millions of people planted Victory Gardens. America was in need of food to feed our troops around the world. Much of the food that had once been used to stock the grocery shelves was suddenly being sent to military bases to feed the millions of men and women in uniform. Rationing limited the kinds and amounts of food that could be purchased. People were asked to grow as much of their own food as possible so that commercial supplies could be dedicated to government needs.

During World War II, the Federal Government led a nation-wide effort to promote the planting of Victory Gardens. U.S. Post Offices featured large posters urging all people to plant gardens. Public schools asked students to participate in the program. Towns developed public projects to grow gardens. Many city dwellers dug up small plots in their backyards. The nation mobilized to make this important program a success.

Although farmers had always grown their own gardens, the war made gardens even more important. Farm families became more aware of the impact they were having on the war effort. When I was a small boy on the Victoria farm during World War II, I believed that our garden was helping win the war. I looked at the posters and heard the slogans. My brother, Jim, was in Europe, flying bombing missions against Germany. I was convinced that our garden was helping feed him as he fought for our country. Even children were involved in the war effort.

As I watched the First Lady and her two daughters dig in the small garden plot and plant a few seeds and set out a few plants, I remembered the large garden we made just north of our house. From those war years to the very day he died, my father was a dedicated gardener. He planted a large assortment of vegetables such as English peas, pinto beans, green beans, carrots, lettuce, beets, okra, and others. He set out onion, tomato, and cabbage plants in carefully spaced rows, banking the dirt around them and sometimes placing tin cans around them to protect them from the wind. He carefully hoed the weeds that grew in the garden and plowed the ground with a push garden plow to till the soil. He was pushing a garden plow on the morning he suffered a fatal heart attack at the age of 70.

My mother sometimes helped some of the other farm ladies can garden products to support the war effort. I cannot remember where the jars of canned vegetables were sent, but I recall my mother and other Bradley women canning in the building on the corner across from Bradley School. That was the same building where they rolled bandages for the Red Cross.

When I see the First Family and the First Dog working in their small garden, I remember spending hours in our garden with my dog, Collie, as my parents worked in the soil. Collie was interested in whatever I did. We would walk in the freshly tilled ground, looking for whatever might be of interest. Sometimes we would find large white grub worms. Collie would sniff them, jump at them with his front feet, and watch them intently. Sometimes he would begin to dig as if he had found an animal underground. He would put his nose in the hole he had dug and sniff and snort loudly, sometimes barking as he looked at the hole. Even though he never caught anything, he enjoyed his garden adventures.

As the years pass by, it is interesting to observe how everything comes full circle. Just as World War II brought on the Victory Garden movement, now the recession and the environment have created an upsurge in home gardens. Eleanor Roosevelt planted a Victory Garden on the White House lawn to support the war effort. Now our new First Lady has planted her own garden on the White House lawn to support her husband's projects to recover the nation.

From major world events such as wars and economic disasters to small projects such as Victory Gardens, history repeats itself. The more I read history, biography, and autobiography, the more I realize that the writer of the Book of Ecclesiastes in the Bible was so wise when he wrote, "There is nothing new under the sun."

News from the State Capitol

An Update from State Rep. Lisa Billy

If you have paid any attention to the news in recent months, then you know all about how some public officials have taken advantage of the system and the power they've been entrusted with.

It has been a shame for our system of government and it has made the people of this great state and country have less faith in their elected leaders. It's getting to the point that when bad news comes out about an elected leader, the reaction is less shock and more acceptance. "Why should I be surprised?" a citizen likely asks him or herself.

What's worse is that these leaders, who morphed into criminals, still end up getting rewarded. A current loophole in the law will allow one of these "leaders" to draw their retirement or health benefits, which means they can live off the taxpayer's dime.

I believe that is wrong. A lot of my fellow legislators agree and something has been done about it. Last week, Senate Bill 899 was passed in the House by an overwhelming vote. It had already passed the Senate earlier this session. It now heads to the governor's desk for his consideration.

I believe it will gain his signature because it's a solid, common-sense law. What it does is this: It will close the loopholes allowing state, county and municipal officials convicted of a felony to retain their benefits. This would also apply to former office-holders who commit crimes – or have been found guilty of crimes – after leaving office. It would apply to any felony or bribery, corruption, forgery, perjury or any other crime related to the duties of the office, campaign contributions or campaign financing.

We in the United States have been blessed with the best system of government the World has ever seen and we cannot let that waste away. This is a great country and a great state and we deserve only the best when it comes to leadership. I hope that this measure will place some faith back in our officials and serve as a warning to those in power who might be thinking of corrupting the system.

April Is Child Abuse Prevention Month

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month. The McClain-Garvin County Youth and Family Center encourages all individuals and organizations to become involved in making their community a better place for children and families. "Child Abuse Prevention Month (April) is a time to celebrate the important role everyone should take in protecting children," said Donna McClung, Executive Director at the McClain-Garvin County Youth and Family Center.

This year, the Oklahoma State Department of Health, Office of Child Abuse Prevention, is encouraging all Oklahoma communities to build a Blue Ribbon Tree. The blue ribbon is the international sign for child abuse prevention and serves as a constant reminder that all of us have a responsibility to help keep children safe. "Hopefully we will see blue ribbons on hundreds of trees in McClain and Garvin County during April in recognition of Child Abuse Prevention Month", reported Executive Director Donna McClung.

According to statistics from the Oklahoma Department of Human Services, in FY 2008 (July 1, 2007 to June 30, 2008) there were 82 confirmed cases of child abuse or neglect in McClain County, 111 confirmed cases of child abuse or neglect in Garvin County, and 11,714 confirmed cases of child abuse or neglect in Oklahoma. "Just one victim of child abuse is one too many" said Executive Director Donna McClung. "Many survivors of abuse need counseling, social, and health services (some for the rest of their lives) in order to recover from and to try to break the vicious cycle of abuse and neglect. This affects the health of families and entire communities for generations to come."

The McClain-Garvin County Youth and Family Center provides a child abuse prevention program called "Healthy Beginnings" to new families in McClain and Garvin counties. The program is funded through a contract with the Oklahoma State Department of Health, Office of Child Abuse Prevention. The program also receives contributions and donations from the Lexington Assessment and Receiving Center, the Joseph Harp Correctional Center, the Pauls Valley United Fund, and various local civic clubs, service groups, and concerned individuals.

The Healthy Beginnings Program provides family resource and support services for parents in McClain and Garvin counties by providing home visiting services at the prenatal stage of pregnancy or at the time of birth. The target population is first-time mothers past their 28 week of pregnancy, first-time mothers not already served by the Children First Program, pregnant women expecting or delivering their second or subsequent child, and parents of newborns up to one year old. All families are enrolled in the program on a voluntary basis.

For more information about the McClain-Garvin County Youth and Family Center and its services call Donna McClung, Executive Director, at 405-527-2424 Ext. 23.

Tall Tales

by Doyle Greteman

Superintendent, Lindsay Schools

Each year, teachers at our school district nominate and vote on candidates for "Teacher of the Year." Lindsay has been represented by many talented, unique individuals over the years, and this year's nominee is no exception.

Ironically, Brandon Fentem, historian, actor, re-enactor, public speaker, and last but certainly not least, history teacher, came to Lindsay to teach in the Bicentennial year of 1976. Lindsay, as you know, sits at the crossroads of highways 19 and 76.

Mr. Fentem, who was born on the 39th anniversary of the first World War, evidently was "born to teach." Although his awards and achievements are too numerous to mention, a few highlights have been sponsoring the Close Up Foundation study program in Washington, D.C., which allows students to study government first hand, and sponsoring, along with his wife Becky, a tour of the United Kingdom and another of the German speaking countries.

What is it about this veteran teacher that makes him unique? His teaching style is innovative, to say the least! He has introduced simulation gaming and historical re-enacting into our school. He also devised and developed a combat simulation of the Battle of Honey Springs, the largest Civil War battle in Indian Territory.

Many times over the past years, on a crisp, clear autumn afternoon, one might gaze out into the school courtyard and witness a Civil War setting, complete with tent, campfire and a soldier in full uniform. That soldier would be Mr. Fentem, and seated around the campfire would be his students, engrossed in the vivid re-enactment of that tumultuous period in the history of our nation.

Mr. Fentem has traveled to elementary schools around the state, re-creating the role of an Oklahoma 89'er during the Land Run. One of the grade-schoolers was so convinced he was the real thing, he demonstrated to him how to use the water fountain. Mr. Fentem waited half an hour to leave because he couldn't bear the thought of them seeing him drive off in an automobile!

This multi-talented teacher has served as a background artist in the movies Gettysburg and Rough Riders. He has also served on a State Department Committee to establish grading levels for the End-of-Instruction American History test. He has been a guest speaker at numerous civic and educational events, as well as serving as a volunteer with the National Park Service and Amtrak in the "Trails and Rails" program.

He sometimes recalls how, as a child, his parents would take him to Civil War battlefields, where he would get lost in thought—for him, the battle happened all over again, right there in front of him. While visiting the Dachau concentration camp in Germany, he was caught up in the moment, as the past became reality.

We've often heard the expression, "Why do I have to study history?" At Lindsay High School, students who have been fortunate enough to experience Brandon Fentem's history classes don't ask that question. They have seen history come alive before their very eyes.

Hopefully, Mr. Fentem will be strongly considered for Oklahoma's Teacher of the Year. It would be only fitting for a man who, in his own words, "loved the past and desired to shape the future based upon lessons learned and applied from history."

The Norman Transcript

- ✓ Starting out fresh, looking at the opportunities the year presents and assessing what those mean to readers.
- ✓ Volunteering with a number of community and professional organizations, both to keep the paper visible, but also to make sure the paper is connected and aware of changes around us.
- ✓ Working with staff and managers to address the dozens of situations that crop up daily.
- ✓ Talking with readers one-on-one, whether it's a story idea or a general comment about the paper, trying to make sure we're paying attention.
- ✓ Talking with advertisers and making sure the product we're producing can be a viable component of their success.
- ✓ Addressing the various crises. You can count on at least a couple a year, from weather-related concerns, or one of those incredible news situations that requires us to put all hands on deck to tackle the situation.
- ✓ Getting my hands dirty on occasion. There's no better way to understand the various tasks than to do them yourself. It's not a day-to-day thing, but occasionally it's the best way to get a handle on certain aspects of the operation
- ✓ Look back at the end of the year and assess how we did. A little reflection's always valuable when we spend so much time caught up in the moment.

I'm proud to work at a newspaper.

Earl Brown Family

Turn off the highway and let's go down the Wallville Road. Because of the subject matter in this week's column, it's not suggested for readers under 85. Now, this is a fact with my hand up. Wallville, America belonged to a kinder, gentler time when life was a little slower. Such was the life of Earl Brown and wife Lois and children. Now, they lived approximately a mile from the bustling business district of Wallville or the General Store. They were Aunt and Uncle to Owl Man. Uncle Earl was a character character raised in hard times by his folks Jim and Bertie Brown and a big group of cousins, young, homeless men and ner'd wells. He was a horseman, owned a few of his own, rancher, school bus driver, ran a broomcorn seeder, and liked Bull of the Woods chewing tobacco. He offered me some one day and said it was candy. Fortunately I declined the offer, a smart move for a boy under ten years of age. Aunt Lois was my mom's sister and one of the sweetest ladies you would ever meet, loved children and chickens. Besides being one great cook, you didn't have to call us twice when it was time to eat at her table. It wasn't on a regular basis, but there were times we stayed with them. Perhaps when Mom was in the family way or the time she spent in the hospital when her legs got infected when she ran through bull nettles, a sticker weed, while driving the cows home. Whatever the case, we always enjoyed ourselves in our stay down the Wallville Road.

Greetings from Wallville U.S.A. where we are rolling back the curtains of memory now and then. Welcome to Legend #854.

The Wallville Church was treated to the presence of Matt, Kristi, and Anna Grace Hunt April 15. Enjoying the singing and preaching of Brother Matt.

FYI-To those who missed our Easter meeting, the preachers who preached for us were Brother Phillip Bernard, the night speaker, Jeremy McDaniel, Tommy Toliver, Shane Pharis, and Steve Bernard, 6 p.m. service; Samuel Bernard and Brandon Murray, Sunday morning Brother Timothy Hunt, Marvin Dodson, and Kenneth McCutcheon, April 2009.

Birthday boomers, April 23-30, Pepper Austin the 24, Vernon Auld and Curtis Williams share the 27, John Crites the 26, Billy Smart and Donald McClish party hard on the 28, Willie Cunningham, our old pioneer celebrates on the 27, Christina Waite and Clifford D. White's big day is the 29, and Troy Adams birthday is the 30.

The Wallville Road news, a proud sponsor of Sierra-Rae, homes Sierra-Rae Homes, the finest in home construction. Joe Hunt, building superintendent, 405-206-7495.

Finally Robert Denison reports from Capitola, CA-no reports of Alton Hunt sighting in California. It's strange he covers his tracks so well. One of these days someone, somewhere, sometime, will spot him and the world will know. Is he real or is he a myth? Glad for the report. Now, we can all schedule our trips to Disneyland.

Winner of the roses-27 years of spooning and happy honeymooning this April 30 to Joel and Debi Quinn. Joel once sang in the Wallville booster band.

Call early, make reservations, get a good seat. Hughes Alumni, June 27, 2009. They would like to have a head count by June 1. Call Carolyn Lewis at 405-756-7334, Sandra Martin at 405-867-5374 or Judy Holden at 405-570-8838 or 405-756-4524, call Cecil Covel at 580-432-5254 or 580-227-5208. That should cover it. Oh, by the way, inflation has set in, admission is now $12.

Reporting from Italy-Michael Chris Knapp, broomcorn specialist, first class-Hey Al-I went to Rome and picked up two hitchhikers named Paula and Becky I think. Suzie got lost in Spain!!! Went to Mount Vesuvius yesterday. If I had to choose between tornadoes and volcanoes I think I would go with twisters!!! Mike has been a faithful reporter.

The next time you're in Italy write the Owl Man at Rt 3 Box 222-A, Pauls Valley, OK 73075 or make that long-distance call to 405-207-3268.

The Wallville Veteran's Committee this week salutes Corporal Allen Vestle, U.S. Marine, trained in Camp Pendelton, California. Served as a radio operator 6 months in Okinawa and the Phillipines (2531). 1978-1981.

The Wallville Church enjoyed a surprise visit April 18 from preachers Brother Joe Dodson, and wife Veda of Blanchard, and Brother James Jeffries and wife of Wynnewood. It turned out to be a spirit-filled service.

With the green grass growing and trees a sprouting, and reported sightings of the first hummingbird we head into 2009 this is be kind to "Volunteer Fire Fighters, EMS Squads, Police Officials, and ER Hospital Workers Week". It looks like it's going to be one of those years.

This week's column was sponsored by the Broomcorn Johnny Action Figure Museum and Michael Chris Knapp Travels, Inc.

In the foothills of Wallville hide many mysteries and legends. My Aunt Lois Brown saw many things. One night in the twilight hours of the day while sitting on her big, front porch, shared with me the history of the dreaded Rush Creek floodings. But, it was as a young whipper snapper knee high to a grasshopper she let me in on a secret I've told no one until now. She told me of a giant bubble circling the Earth carrying two huge dragons and if a person was to tell a lie they would float down two where you were and get you. Well, you can guess I kept my eye on the sky. Watched what I said and as they years passed I was glad I never wanted to be a politician from down the Wallville Road.

OBITUARY

Everett Wayne Gregory 1923-2009

Everett Wayne Gregory was born in Purdy, Garvin County, OK August 15, 1923 to Andy and Alpharetta Mae (Green) Gregory and passed from this life April 13, 2009 in his home in Erin Springs, OK at the age of 85 years, 7 months and 28 days. Everett had lived in Garvin County most of his life except for the time he served in the U.S. Army. He was drafted in October 1943 and did his basic training at Camp Walters, TX. He was a machine gunner and had seen about seven months of combat before he was wounded at Bologna, Italy.

A grenade left him wounded with shrapnel in his leg. He was then taken as a German prisoner of war. After being in captivity for six months, he was released and later discharged in December 1945. After leaving the army he continued to farm and raise cattle with his father. January 31, 1948, he married Vesta Marie Cox who was his wife for over 61 years. They set up their own household and began their family. In February 1952 they moved to his parents farm in the Rocky Point community. They purchased the family farm in the 1950's, where the couple continued to farm and raise cattle. Marie was a stay at home mom, and Everett began working outside the farm. He retired from Rural Electric Cooperative after 29 years. At that time, he was the purchasing agent.

Everett gave his heart to the Lord many years ago; but, he later rededicated his life and became a member of the Erin Springs Baptist Church. He loved reading his Bible, attending Sunday school and church, the men's breakfasts and senior suppers. He was also a member of the American Legion. Everett loved his farm, his cattle, and he adored his family. He thoroughly enjoyed the time spent with his wife, children and grandchildren.
