New Fair Barn Being Considered-- School Board Tables Proposed Prison Vote

The Lindsay School Board met Monday to discuss the location of a proposed prison in Lindsay and holding an election for the citizens of Lindsay to vote for the prison to be built. The location is in question because it is less than a mile from the Lindsay School Fair Barn.

Several concerned citizens and members of the Industrial Foundation were present at the meeting.

In the special meeting Monday Mike Somers, representing the Lindsay Industrial Foundation, asked the School Board to consider the possibility of an agreement for the Foundation to rebuild the fairbarn at another location. The question was tabled because it was not on the agenda.

The School Board will meet at a later time to make a decision on the proposal.

Lisa Billy Helps Improve Lives Of Oklahoma Children

State Rep. Lisa J. Billy consistently supported legislation that would improve the lives of Oklahoma's children, according to a new report issued by the nonpartisan Oklahoma Institute for Child Advocacy.

"While many of the bills we face at the Legislature receive more press attention, those affecting the lives of children are truly some of the most important," said Billy, R-Purcell. "I appreciate the Oklahoma Institute for Child Advocacy's work on behalf of Oklahoma children and am honored to be recognized by the group."

Among the measures Billy supported that the OICA touted in its "2008 Legislative Report on Children and Youth" were a measure requiring additional physical exercise time for schoolchildren, a bill establishing a program to train therapists to work with autistic children, legislation requiring day care facilities to carry liability insurance, a measure creating scholarships for nursing students, and a bill requiring regular lock-down drills at schools to deal with worst-case scenarios.

Former students that were present at the Pikes Peak school move in and clean up day were Rudy Parker, Odell Parker, Ida Bell (Snow) McCully, and Rosie (Snow) Ratley. The Pikes Peak school house has been renovated and is located across from the Lindsay Murray Mansion in Erin Springs.

BACK TO SCHOOL PART II

As school begins, students are busy buying school supplies and school clothes. At Wal-Mart and other stores, parents can pick up a list of the supplies their children will need. The lists are long and specific, calling for certain kinds of pencils, pens, markers, paper, and folders. Backpacks are a necessity to carry all of the supplies and books required for each school day. School clothes are important to students, parents, and school officials. School clothes are often regulated to encourage better behavior at school. Some public schools have even begun to require students to wear school uniforms. As a teacher and a grandparent, I observe these school guidelines with mixed reactions. I am particularly interested in the changes that have come about since I was a young student.

When I was a student at Bradley, our school supplies were few and simple. In grade school, we might get a pencil box with 3 or 4 pencils, a ruler, scissors, a bottle of paste, and a Big Chief tablet. I loved to look at my school supplies before any of them had been used. I loved to write with newly-sharpened pencils. Even on the cheap, brittle Big Chief tablet paper, my words looked like magic to me. The ruler always reminded me of math, the bane of my life. Some of my friends ate their paste. I always wanted new textbooks that were clean and unmarked. I tried my best to keep my books clean and neat.

My grandchildren have so many school supplies. They have magic markers, felt tip pens, numerous notebooks, folders, calculators, and math aids such as compasses, protractors, and rulers. With all of these supplies, it is necessary that they have a backpack to carry it all. On the side of their backpacks, they have a small pocket for their cell phones. Their cell phones are supposed to be for emergency use only. I hope that is all they use them for. The backpacks are prestige items. They want a certain color and style. My granddaughter, LaurieBeth, must have a pink one. Last week, my grandson, Walker, who will be a fifth grader, picked out a camouflage backpack. It looks as if it would fit in on a dove hunting trip. He loved it.

In my youth, school clothes were very simple. We wore the same clothes to school that we wore at home, except we wore the newer ones to school. In grade school, almost everyone wore overalls and cotton shirts. A few boys wore what we called waist pants, either jeans or khakis. Shoes were made of leather, either work shoes, boots, or slippers. A few people wore their basketball shoes to school, what we called tennis shoes. They were almost always white Chuck Taylor models. However, Bill Mitchell had a cool pair of black basketball shoes called Skips.

The girls wore print dresses, skirts, blouses or sweaters, and jeans. Some wore head scarves to hold their hair in place. Designer jeans had never been seen. The clothes were modestly cut. I never remember a girl being reprimanded for wearing clothes that were too revealing.

Now all has changed. Schools have strict rules about clothing for both boys and girls. Rules forbid boys to wear jeans that are too low on the hips. Shirts that reveal too much skin or that are unbuttoned are forbidden. Gang colors such as black are forbidden in some schools. Clothes with large holes are also often banned.

Girls have more restrictions regarding the length of skirts, the cut of blouses, and holes that are too revealing. This month, my granddaughter bought school clothes with an eye to whether they would pass inspection at Oklahoma Bible Academy where she attends high school.

Some schools have passed a regulation that students must wear a kind of uniform, although the school officials prefer to call the rules a "revised student dress code." Elk City Public Schools have implemented a dress code that requires all boys to wear collared polo shirts, which must be tucked in at all times. The shirts must be brown, white, khaki or navy. Brown and white are the school colors. The boys must wear khaki or navy slacks. Pants must be fitted at the waist and be worn with a belt if the pants have belt loops. Superintendent Galeard Roper said, "We won't be seeing any more holes in pants or boxer shorts peeking out of someone's pants." These rules will eliminate jeans and sweats as school attire.

The girls may wear khaki or navy slacks or khaki or navy colored skirts. For both boys and girls, all shoes must be closed-toe oxford or tennis shoes, which must have the same colored laces as the shoes or the laces that came with the shoes. Although some parents are against this new regulation, the Superintendent and the Board of Education believe it will improve education in the Elk City Public School system.

When I was a student at Bradley, we had little need for dress code regulations. We wore what we could afford. Since there were few wealthy people at Bradley, economic necessity created a kind of dress code of its own. If we were deprived children, we were gloriously unaware of our plight. In high school, I went to school with a light heart, proud of my clean, starched and ironed jeans and my starched and ironed khaki shirt.

The Erin Springs OHCE Group met Monday, August 11 in the home of Shirley Caldwell. President Allene Lindsey opened the meeting at 1 p.m. and called on Mary Robertson to lead the group in singing "God Bless America".

Sally Scott led the flag salute and Oleda Flud led the repeating of the club collect. Shirley gave a devotional from Colossians 3:1.

Roll call by Audra Dennis was answered by each member telling what she is doing for the fair, whether sewing, canning, cleaning, taking exhibits to the exhibit area, or picking them up afterwards, etc.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Audra Dennis and approved as read. The thought for the day was read by Shirley Caldwell. Sue Duncan read the quote and Erna Tannehill read the tips and bits.

Mary Robertson gave the treasurer's report. Erna Tannehill reported on Erin Springs Cemetery. Sue Duncan reported on the cook book account and Allene Lindsey shared a letter with the group from the constitution committee.

At this time five members of the Erin Springs Club are planning to go on the Galveston trip.

The officers for the upcoming year are: president, Mary Robertson; vice-president, Sally Scott; secretary/reporter, Audra Dennis; treasurer, Oleda Flud; and song leader, Sue Duncan.

The meeting closed and Shirley Caldwell served refreshments to Sue Duncan, Oleda Flud, Allene Lindsey, Julia Murray, Mary Robertson, Sally Scott, Erna Tannehill, and Audra Dennis.

The next meeting will be in the home of Audra Dennis August 26 at 1:30 p.m.

Members are reminded to bring the fair exhibits and they will work together to get the entry tags on them.

Winsome Class Meets

The last summer meeting of the Winsome Sunday School Class of First Baptist, Lindsay was August 12. They had a good group.

President Carolyn Hutto gave the blessing, and business matters were discussed during the meal. The group was short on time, as half of them are in the "Singing Seniors", and they were headed to Norman to sing at the Veterans Center.

It was decided to make a donation to the Children's Home in memory of one of the member's brother. Prayer requests were made and absent members remembered.

Kathy Ellithorpe read the following from "The World For You Today", a daily devotional provided by the Church.

Spiders

"The spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in Kings' palaces." Proverbs 30:28

Everything a spider needs to survive and succeed in life, God put within it. Swipe it with a broom and before it hits the ground, its fall is broken. It just reaches inside, releases another protein-filled silk-like thread, slides down, finds a safe place, then comes back stronger than ever and builds a new web. What's the message of the spider? Everything you need, God has placed within you! The Bible says, "His divine power has given us everything we need for life and godliness. . . He has given us His very great and precious promises, so that through them you may participate in the divine nature" (2Pe1:3-4NIV). What has God given us? "Everything we need." What had God made up participants in?" "His divine nature." Wow! Your future is not determined by who you know and who you don't, who likes you and who doesn't. The power to fulfill your destiny is within you! The warfare over your life and the struggle you're in, is about what you were born, called and gifted to do. So, "Stir up. . . the gift of God. . . that is in you" (2Ti 1:6 AMP) In other words-start producing!

Life may have knocked you down, but it hasn't knocked you out. What's at wok within you will triumph over what's at work around you. Stand on God's Word, draw on your faith, hold on, and when the smoke clears, rise up and announce. "By the grace of God, I'm back!" You say, "But, I've lost so much." As long as you still have what God put within you, you can make it!

Bob Hutto was a guest. Others attending were: Lavora Dodd, Kathy Ellithorpe, Shirley England, Carolyn Hutto, Barbara Lackey, Kathy Marcum, LaRue Robinson, and Frances Sunderland.

THANK YOU

The Barbara Bray family would like to say thanks to all family and friends who sent flowers and food. A special thank you goes out to the Erin Springs Church of God.

Sincerely Thanks!
The Bray Family
