Academic Bowl Team Places Second In Mid America Conference Tournament

The Lindsay Academic Bowl team recently placed second in the Mid-America Conference tournament held Thursday, October 25. Lindsay advanced to the championship game against Lexington the hard way by coming up through the loser's bracket

After defeating Pauls Valley, Lindsay lost to a good Washington High School team which dropped them down to the loser's bracket. The Lindsay team then got on a roll.

First, they defeated Tuttle 170-40, and then they won a squeaker against Purcell winning 180-170. That set up a rematch with Washington, but this time Lindsay came out on top 230-190. Lindsay went against Lexington for the championship, but fell to the Bulldogs by a score of 110-210.

Josh Boydston made All-Conference by placing in the top six in scoring average. Josh, who is also the team captain, led Lindsay in scoring at the tournament with 300 points followed by senior Jerod Frizzell with 250 points. Also, scoring for Lindsay was Clint Jackson-60 points, Cheyenne Coffee-60 points, and Thomas Selzer and Cash Cooper with 40 points each. Other team members include Kevin Smith, Raychel Murray, and alternates-Matt Lail, Jake McGuire, and Dylan Beil.

At the district seeding meet October 22, Lindsay tied with Bridge Creek and Purcell with 620 total points. Next up for the academic team is regional competition which will be held on November 10 at Kingfisher.

Leaders Of Tomorrow Launched By Girl Scouts

As part of a national transformation in Girl Scouting Sooner Council has created new activities and has launched a new community outreach group to help local girls build strong leadership skills. Leaders of Tomorrow is a newly reorganized group of teen Girl Scouts, their focus is to plan and carry out activities and events on their own for other Girl Scouts. Fun activities, experiential learning events and service projects give a chance for the girls to develop skills for future leadership opportunities.

"We recognize that girls view leadership in different ways, so we do whatever we can to offer a broad range of leadership experiences to every Girl Scout," says Laura Wijkowski, CEO of Girl Scouts Sooner Council. "We are proud to provide activities that will continue to inspire our girls throughout their lives."

Confronted by a national lack of data on girls and leadership, the Girl Scout Research Institute (GSRI) has launched a body of work to identify what girls need to succeed as leaders. This work is designed to support and accelerate a national transformation launched in 2006 to modernize Girl Scouting as the premier leadership experience for girls in the 21st century.

The Girl Scout Research Institute has released a new review of research on girls and leadership, "Exploring Girls' Leadership," that identifies a lack of gender-specific data on youth leadership. To address the need for further research, the GSRI has begun an original national study scheduled for release in Spring 2008. In addition, the GSRI is developing tools to measure the new Girl Scout leadership programming to be introduced in Fall 2008.

"While many programs exist to help youth build leadership skills, very little data exists on how girls experience leadership and what they need to succeed in this arena," says Judy Schoenberg, Director of Research & Outreach for the Girl Scout Research Institute. "As the voice of girls, the Girl Scout Research Institute is taking on the task of identifying what girls need to develop their full leadership potential."

New Research Review: "Exploring Girls' Leadership"

The GSRI's new research review, "Exploring Girls' Leadership," analyzes the literature from the youth development and youth leadership fields and contrasts

OKLAHOMA BOOKS THE GRAPES OF WRATH PART I

The Grapes of Wrath is undoubtedly the most famous, or infamous, book about Oklahoma and Oklahoma people. John Steinbeck's award winning novel traced the journey of the Joad family from Eastern Oklahoma to California in the Dust Bowl days of the 1930s. The novel is partly a sociological treatise on the terrible poverty of America in the 1930s. It is also a picture of the conflict between the "haves" and the "have nots."

On a figurative level, the novel shows a symbolic journey of the Children of Israel as they seek the Promised Land. The book faithfully portrays the Okies in their attempt to find a new home in the promised land of California. In the characterization, Steinbeck creates memorable characters who illustrate that era in American history.

As the novel opens, the Joad family is leaving their home in Eastern Oklahoma where they have been "tractored" off their land. After years of drought, the bank has taken over their land. As they prepare to drive away from their farm, a tractor is plowing the land. The operator wears a dust mask, like an alien in a strange land. Without swerving, the tractor plows up the yard and pushes the house off its foundation. Tom Joad thinks he would like to shoot the driver, but then he says it is not really the driver's fault. He is an employee of the bank. And Tom thinks, you can't shoot a bank.

When Steinbeck created the Joad family and gave them the name "Okies," he created a symbol of poor migrant workers that has lived through the years. In a dilapidated truck with all of their possession piled on top and tied to the sides, the whole family heads down Route 66, "The Mother Road," to California. They encounter many more families making the same sad trek. They are all Dust Bowl displaced persons seeking an escape from poverty and a new beginning in California.

Like all of the other "Okies," the Joads are seeking a new life. They dream of California as a Garden of Eden where fruit hangs heavy on the trees, free for the taking. They imagine jobs with good pay and a pleasant climate. They believe that they are leaving poverty behind them forever.

Some critics saw Steinbeck's criticism of the capitalistic system and his picture of the plight of the workers as a kind of socialist doctrine. His sympathy for the oppressed workers and his criticism of the greedy farm owners struck others as a realistic picture of the social conditions of the time. Whichever side a reader might take, most people agreed that the book was a memorable account of a disturbing time in America.

Aside from its political message, The Grapes of Wrath created a major controversy because of the actions and language of some of its characters. Tom Joad, the main character, has been in prison for killing a man in a fight. Pa Joad, the patriarch of the family, is a profane, lecherous old man. Jim Casey, the self-ordained preacher of the group, falls short of his calling by his sexual nature and his lack of a spiritual life. The novel generated a fire storm of criticism among traditional Christians.

The novel became the subject of fiery sermons from pulpits all across Oklahoma. Politicians complained that it gave Oklahoma a bad name across the nation. Censors sought to have the book banned in libraries and schools. Citizens in several towns held public book burnings where they collected copies of The Grapes of Wrath, piled them in the street, and set them on fire. Senators and Representatives attacked the novel on the floor of the State Capitol. Many parents forbade their children to read the novel. Even today, after nearly seven decades, The Grapes of Wrath still stirs some controversy.

But in this centennial year, there has been a renewed interest in this novel about the Dust Bowl, the Great Depression, and the plight of migrant workers. Some readers are rereading the novel from a different point of view. Some readers are approaching the novel from historical, social, and political points of view. Some believe that this work of fiction may present a clearer picture of that period in our history than all of the histories, government documents, and statistical studies. These readers believe that the story of the Joad family presents the best picture of that troubled time in Oklahoma and America.

continued misperceptions with youths' realities and community approaches to leadership in the field. It also suggests areas for further study, such as the aspirational gap faced by girls who see themselves as leaders today but don't necessarily aspire to leadership roles as adults. In addition, the review gives voice to girls by including findings from a small online survey and focus groups of girls around the country.

"Our initial research shows that for girls leadership is about the qualities one has, rather than about a specific role or function, and is often viewed as a clear means toward an end - to make a difference in the world," says Schoenberg. GSRI's focus group research, conducted with hundreds of girls from 2004-2006, suggests that girls have a unique definition of leadership that emphasizes developing personal strength and interpersonal skills. The quantitative survey supports those findings and shows that girls ages 8 to 18 believe that the qualities that good leaders need most are positive attitude, listening skills and confidence.

To address the need for further research, the GSRI is conducting an original national study with girls in and outside Girl Scouting, with mothers, and with boys. This research project explores girls' and boys' definitions of leadership, their perceptions and attitudes about leadership and leadership behaviors, and what they need to see themselves as leaders today and in the future. Results of this study will help GSUSA develop program and policy, and contribute to the dialogue about what it takes to grow and sustain girls' and boys' leadership aspirations through adulthood.

In fall 2008, Girl Scouts of the USA will launch the New Girl Scout Leadership Experience designed to provide girls ages 6 to 17 with expanded leadership opportunities. In conjunction with this new programming, the GSRI is creating tools to measure the leadership benefits that girls derive from Girl Scouting.

In conjunction with its 95th anniversary in 2007, Girl Scouting has launched a historic transformation to modernize the iconic organization and focus on leadership development for girls in the 21st century. In addition to creating new leadership programming for girls, Girl Scouts of the USA is revitalizing the Girl Scout brand, creating new fundraising models, improving volunteer systems, and significantly realigning the national Girl Scout council infrastructure. The monumental changes have been designed to deliver a program that focuses on Girl Scouts' core strength of leadership development, while also offering provable outcomes that benefit girls, families and communities.

Formed in 2000, the Girl Scout Research Institute (GSRI) is a center for research and public policy information on the healthy development of girls. Through conducting groundbreaking research, the main goal of the GSRI is to elevate the voices of girls on key issues that affect their lives - such as their emotional and physical health and safety. The GSRI originates national projects and initiatives, synthesizes existing research and conducts outcomes evaluation to support the development of the Girl Scout program and to provide information to educational institutions, not-for-profits, government agencies, public policy organizations and to parents seeing ways to support their daughters and to girls themselves. The GSRI includes staff and advisors who have expertise in child development and also includes advisors from academia, industry, government and not-for-profit organizations.

Founded in 1912, Girl Scouts of the USA is the preeminent leadership development organization for girls with 3.6 million girl and adult members worldwide. Girl Scouting is the leading authority on girls' healthy development, and builds girls of courage, confidence and character, who make the world a better place. The organization strives to serve girls from every corner of the United States and its territories. Girls Scouts of the USA also serves American girls and their classmates attending American or international schools overseas in 90 countries. For more information on how to join, volunteer, reconnect or donate to Girl Scouts, call (800) GSUSA 4 U (800-478-7248) or visit www.girlscouts.org.

William Leo Elkins

William Leo Elkins To Be Honored on 90th Birthday

A reception honoring William Leo Elkins for his 90th birthday will be given by his family in the United Methodist Church parlor Sunday, November 4 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Leo was born October 31, 1917 in the house which still stands at Fourth and Comanche. One of the greatest generation, he was the eldest of five children and lived almost all of his life in Lindsay. He attended Lindsay School and graduated in 1936 as Valedictorian of his class. He also was awarded the Balfour Award for outstanding student, and was captain of the football team. Growing up during the depression, he held many jobs including paperboy, shoe shine boy, cutting broomcorn, working at the ice dock, and delivering an ice route. At 19, he ran the power plant on the graveyard shift while taking a correspondence course on traffic control. He served as page in the 19367 House of Representatives for six months.

He attended Murray State College, East Central University, and after taking the Civil Service exam, the government sent him to Washington University in St. Louis and to Wichita Municipal University in Wichita, KS after which he worked as a government inspector.

At the age of twenty, he completed his apprentice work for the Masonic Order, but had to wait until twenty-first birthday to become an official member. He became a third degree and then Master Mason, and served as Worshipful Master of the Lindsay Lodge No. 248. In 1940 he married Georgia Carruth and he worked as an ordinance inspector in the steel mills in Pueblo, CO until he enlisted in the Army Air Force. Staff Sergeant Elkins served on Guam during the war as a hydraulics specialist and ran a depot for repair of B29s.

After the war, he was eager to return to Lindsay and his wife and son, Bill, whom he had never seen, and vowed never to leave the beautiful Washita Valley again. He went to work in the oil industry and worked for Continental Emsco for 20 years and Larson Pump Co. for fifteen years and became local manager of each. Meanwhile, he was amassing a 380 acre ranch south of the Murry/Lindsay Mansion. Another son, Von, was added to the family. Von is an attorney in Lindsay at the present time. Grandchildren Whitney Elkins, Zac Elkins, and Lauren Elkins were also added, and now a great-granddaughter, Bailey Elkins.

After the death of his wife of almost 59 years, he met and married the former June Howard. They continue to live in Lindsay. Leo spends his time managing his investments and continues his learning by reading and traveling over the United States.

The Elkins family would like to invite all of their friends to come and help celebrate Leo's birthday with them.

Do You Have the Right Beneficiaries for Your IRA?

Do you invest in either a traditional or Roth IRA? If so, you're making a smart move, because an IRA offers you a tax-advantaged way to save money for retirement. And of course, you want to save as much as you can, because you could spend two or even three decades as a retiree. But if you don't use all your IRA funds, what will happen to them? It's up to you - but your decision can have a big impact on your family, so you'll want to plan carefully.

The dispersal of your IRA depends on the beneficiary or beneficiaries you've named. And when it comes to designating beneficiaries, you have several choices. Here are some of the most common ones:

You can designate your spouse. If you select your spouse as beneficiary, you are providing him or her with considerable flexibility in what to do with the money. That's because your surviving spouse can roll over the IRA assets into his or her own IRA. This allows your spouse to name new beneficiaries and postpone taking required minimum distributions until he or she reaches age 70-1/2.

You can designate a child, grandchild or non-spouse beneficiary. If you name a child or grandchild as your IRA beneficiary, that person can take distributions based on his or her own life expectancy. If the beneficiary is a young person, the distributions can then be "stretched out" over a long period, which can help enhance the potential tax-deferred growth of your IRA assets.

You can name a trust as a beneficiary. You don't have to name a human being as your IRA beneficiary - you can name a trust, which is a legal arrangement giving you great control over how, and when, the IRA assets will be distributed. By designating a trust as beneficiary, you can accomplish any of several goals. For example, if you have remarried, a trust can provide a lifetime income stream to your current spouse, with the remaining assets ultimately passing to your children from an earlier marriage. A trust can also let you decide when your children or grandchildren can receive the assets in your IRA, and how much they can get at any one time. In addition, a trust can enable you to make charitable gifts while gaining tax benefits. (To create a trust, which can be a complex instrument, you'll need to consult with your legal advisor.)

You can name multiple beneficiaries. If you'd like to split your IRA among several children, you can name them all as beneficiaries. Once you die, the life expectancy of the oldest beneficiary generally will be used to determine the payout period for all the beneficiaries. However, each beneficiary can choose to create his or her own IRA, called an "inherited IRA," as long as all these separate accounts are established by December 31 of the year following your death. The inherited IRA owners can then take distributions based on their individual life expectancies.

Your financial and legal advisors can assist you in choosing appropriate IRA beneficiary designations. Take the time to choose wisely. After all, you've worked hard for many years to build your IRA, so you'll want to make sure it ends up in the right hands at the right times.

Lindsay Loses To Hobart

It was senior night last Friday night as the Lindsay Leopards took on the Hobart Bearcats in a game where a win for the Leopards would have all but guaranteed them a spot in the playoffs. But the Hobart Bearcats stole the night and took advantage of five Leopard turnovers handing the Leopards a 25-7 loss.

The night started off on the wrong foot for the Leopards as Hobart would be on offense first. On the first play from scrimmage, Hobart quarterback found Taylan Goss hit T.J. Norman on a 70 yard touchdown reception. The extra point attempt was blocked but with only 18 seconds gone in the game Hobart had the 6-0 lead.

The Leopards first offensive possession started at their own 28 yard line. Three plays later the Leopards were facing 4th and 17 from the 21 yard line, but caught a break when the Bearcats were called for roughing the punter giving Lindsay a 1st down at their own 36 yard line. But the Leopards fumbled the ball on the very next play and Hobart recovered at the Lindsay 39 yard line. Four plays later the Bearcats were knocking on the door with a 1st down at the Lindsay 11 yard line. A holding call against Hobart moved the ball back to the 20 yard line, and running back Travis Bish was dropped for a four yard loss leaving Hobart facing 3rd and 23 from the 24 yard line. That's when Dakota Elledge picked off Goss's pass in the end zone and gave the Leopards the ball at their own 20 yard line.

But the Leopard offense still could not get untracked and the teams traded possessions. The Lindsay offense had great field position for it's third possession of the night starting at the Hobart 49 yard line. But on 3rd and two from the 21 yard line, Jordan Lukens pass was picked off by Hobart's Travis Ferguson and the Bearcats had the ball back on their own 32 yard line. And this time the Hobart defense made the Leopards pay as they went on a 7 play scoring drive with Goss hitting T.C. Bish on a 19 yard touchdown pass to cap off the drive. The Bearcats went for the two point conversion, but the attempt was no good and with 8:35 left in the half Hobart led the Leopards 12-0.

The turnover bug hit the Leopards again on their next possession as they started at their own 33 yard line. The offense was finally starting to click, and 7 plays later they had the ball at the Hobart 40 yard line. But the Leopards fumbled the ball and Hobart recovered on the 42 yard line. Once again the Bearcats took advantage of the Leopard turnover and seven plays later Goss hit Norman on a 15 yard touch down strike. The PAT was no good and with 2:21 left in the half Hobart extended their lead to 18-0.

The Leopards had one more chance in the first half and they took full advantage. The drive started at their own 39 yard line. With some nice runs by Stephon Bradley and Dakota Elledge, the Leopards had the ball at the Hobart 43 yard line. Then Lukens hit Elledge on a slant pattern and Elledge took the ball all the way to the Hobart 13 yard line. Bradley picked up 12 yards to get the ball to the one yard line, and Lukens covered the last yard to give the Leopards the touchdown. Fabio Lindoso's PAT was good and with :26 seconds left in the first half the Leopards closed the gap to 18-7 and that is how the half would end.

Both defenses were stingy in the second half, but the Bearcats were able to put together the only scoring drive of the half. On their third possession of the second half, Hobart started the drive at their own 18 yard line and the Bearcats had their running game working. The drive took 11 plays with Blaine Richards finding the end zone from 5 yards out, and Travis Bish added the extra point. So with 8:15 to go in the game the Bearcats had the 25-7 lead and that is how the game would end.

Offensively the Leopards were led by Stephon Bradley with 15 carries for 72 yards. Dakota Nelson had 10 carries for 52 yards. Jesi Millsap had 3 carries for 15 yards and Jordan Lukens had 9 carries for 11 yards and a touchdown. Dakota Elledge had 2 carries for 6 yards and Barry Cramton had 2 carries for 4 yards to round out the Lindsay rushing game. Lukens was 2 for 10 passing for 54 yards and two interceptions. Elledge had one reception for 30 yards and Bob Garner had one reception for 24 yards.

The Leopard defense was led by Jesi Millsap with 17 tackles, followed by TJ Doan and Jordan Lukens with 8 tackles apiece. TJ Doan and Kolby Webb had 7 tackles each, while Ben Garner, Jordan McCullough and Bob Garner each had 6 tackles. Dakota Elledge also had two interceptions on the night.

The Leopards travel to Bridge Creek to take on the Bobcats for the final game of the regular season. Playoff chances for the Leopards are slim, but a win over Bridge Creek is a necessity if the Leopards are to have any chance at all. So everyone get out and cheer the Leopards on this Friday night. See you at the game!

Turn off the highway and let's go down the Wallville Road. Wallville middle of the 1960's. Men and women still rose early, met at the Johnny Patch, and spent the day harvesting broomcorn. Hughes Public School was in its twilight years and the Wallville General Store was still in full operation. The difference was across the waters in another world, the Vietnam War was raging. Now, although Wallville was hidden deep on the backroads of Garvin County, OK, in the heartland it didn't escape being drawn into the horror of that day. So, with November being the month of the veteran, for all my comrade buddies, I want to share with you the true account of the disappearing soldier. Because many of you will understand. It all began when I hit the sandy streets of Ft. Polk, LA and Army boot camp. It was there I learned some important lessons. I learned drill sergeants did not like you at all, lesson two I learned you could run a mile in the dark before breakfast and three I would learn to crawl in the hot, dusty sands of Louisiana under barbed wired on your back with an M-14 Rifle clutched to your chest also in the dark with live bullets being fired over your head. There were days I yearned to be sitting under the arbor of the Wallville Store sipping on a cold Pepsi. After six weeks of that fun place, I was shipped out to Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, TX and training for my expertise as a combat medic. Finally, we were allowed to go home on leave to visit family and friends just before being shipped off to Ft. Bragg, NC. There we learned the art of police calls, but also we were assigned to duty in an Army hospital. We were allowed to put our training to good use. But, always knowing the possibility of a Vietnam tour loomed ahead for the old boy from down the Wallville road.

Greetings from Wallville U.S.A., the place that made Hughes Community what it is today, a barren wasteland. Welcome to legend #782.

A Garvin County legend left the bonds of earth October 22, 2007. Miss Ruth Spurlock (94) passed away in Stratford, OK. Miss Spurlock and her husband John operated the Spurlock Grocery east of Lindsay along Highway 19 from 1957 to 1971. Our thoughts are with the family.

Once again November 11, 2007, a benefit dinner and silent auction will be held for Alfred and Cindy White from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Maysville School Cafeteria to help with medical expenses. Do your part.

Robert and Kathy Ellithorp are just back from Niagra Falls, New York and Canada. They along with 51 senior citizens from their church made the trip. Simply enjoying themselves.

The Wallville Church young people traveled to Waurika, OK to enjoy a youth rally at the Trinity Holiness Church on Anderson and 2nd, hearing good preaching from Timothy Hunt, Johnny Hunt, and Brother Troy Shifflett. Brother Clifford Anderson and Brother Phillip Bernard were on hand putting their two cents worth in.

Hats off to all the residents of the great state of Oklahoma celebrating 100 years of statehood November 16. Home of Wallville, America, not your ordinary small ghost town.

Happy birthday folks, Katie Harrison, Barbara Lee, and Sheila Yandell November 1, on the 2nd, Adrian Hines parties, Janie Kay Clark parties in the Rush Creek Valley on the 3rd, Mind. Holden's birthday is November 3rd, moving on Mariah Reed and Ed White share November 4, on November 7 Margie Wilson paints the town red and finally this week Mark Drees birthday is the 8.

The Hughes teacher research team is still seeking information on teachers Jeanette Arnette, Lucille Forrester, and where have you gone J.V. Haney? Report in please, call 207-1691 or 207-1692.

The Wallville Church enjoyed the preaching of Reverend Matthew J. Hunt October 27, 2007. Wife Kristi was in the crowd, but Anna Grace Hunt was the star of the show.

Winner of the roses, way up on Chandler Hill, it's Leroy and Reba Chandler this November 5 makes 51 yeas of spooning and happy honeymooning.

From the note pad of Gina Cable, the Wallville Road column can now be found on the world wide web of the Lindsay News. Comment from Al Hunt, "I have no idea what this means."

A special announcement-my friend Angela Pelfrey informs us she will be having a yard sale November 4 on Garret Street in Lindsay, bargains galore. Your deal is waiting on you.

Happy anniversary wishes to the old soldier Tommy Burrell and wife Dorothy. 45 years this November 3. Congratulations.

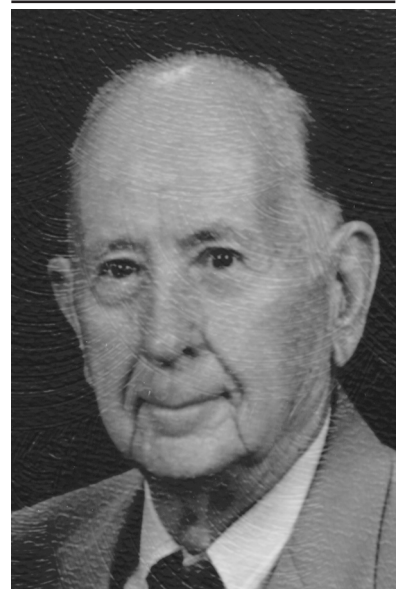

The Wallville Veteran's Committee salutes veterans everywhere and the American Legion Lindsay Post which meets the first Tuesday in the month at the Lindsay Senior Citizen Building at 6 p.m. Check it out.

Happy anniversary Number 27 to Stanley and Rebecca Hunt of Geronimo Street in the Valley of Promise this November 7, 2007.

Beautiful fall weather just right for sitting on the front porch, swinging in the old porch swing. Until next week this is be kind to "Tyler Mayhan" week, one of the good guys.

Well, back to our adventure, I was one of the lucky ones, that Vietnam tour never materialized, but I was bound for a 2 year tour of Germany. Landing in Frankfurt, Germany in June of 1969. Left there for Stuttgart, Germany and the 574th Medical Det. which was later combined with the 757th Med. Det. which became the 29th Med. Det. Working as a Medical Record Clerk in a dispensary each day at sick call we saw the sick, the lame, and the lazy. It was a gravy job as far as the Army was concerned. I traveled thru the service clubs to Paris, Switzerland, and Austria. Not to mention in my own car purchases there traveled all around Germany. This Army life wasn't so tuff. Then I met SP/5 Terrence Douglass transferred to our outfit after a year tour of duty in war torn Vietnam. Now, Douglass was a good guy, always a little edgy. But, I never gave it a thought. Until the day we made a stop out in the country at a used car lot. We were checking out the cars when way off in the distance some farmer shot off his rifle. I turned to ask my friend something only to find he ad disappeared. I thought where'd he go. Then I noticed he was sprawled out on the ground. I was stunned. He got up dusted himself off and said he was sorry, it was on old habit he got into when bullets started flying on the shore of Vietnam. I couldn't grasp it. And, I've never forgotten it in all my travels down the Wallville Road.

Herrin of the home; son and daughters, Tom Herrin and wife Alexia of Lindsay, OK, Nancy Hemphill and husband Mahlon of Duncan, OK, and Tricia Newman and husband Bob of Oklahoma City, OK; six grandchildren, Jennifer Posteltwaite and husband Jeff, Brian Herrin, Michael and Jeffrey Hemphill, Robert Newman and wife Aimee, and Lydia Guzman and husband Sai; and two great-grandchildren, Allyson Guzman, and Nikki Newman.

She was preceded in death by her parents, two brother, Guy L. Cross, Jr., and David P. Cross, and one son, Richard Keith Herrin.

Pallbearers were Chip Wood, Jimmy Edwards, Guy Messersmith, Kevin Zinn, Mike Steil, Lonnie Helms, and honorary pallbearers were Sam Thompson, Jim Livingston, Gordon Demerson, Don Dowhower, Bob Hoffman, Al Hruby, and Quanah Cox.

Services were held at 10 a.m. October 30 at the First Presbyterian Church in Duncan, OK with Reverend Tracy L. Wilson officiating. Burial was in the Duncan Cemetery with Grantham Funeral Home in charge of interment.
