What, When & Where!

Joy Store baskets are now being filled in time to be delivered before Christmas. No more toys or food donations are needed, but monetary donations will continue to be helpful. The application deadline is over. The generosity is well appreciated.

Annual Christmas Dinner will be sponsored by the Howell-Robertson-Springman families and will be held December 25 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Calvary Baptist Church. Call 756-4209 or on Christmas Day 756-2781 for deliveries.

The Lindsay Civic Arts Association bus trip to "A Very Merry Pops" Concert in Pauls Valley Wednesday, December 17 will leave by bus promptly at 5:45 p.m. from the United Methodist Church at Chickasaw and SW Second Street. A limited number of tickets are still available. Please contact Isabel Alexander at 756-2312 to purchase a ticket.

The Fellowship of Living Faith Church will have their annual Christmas Eve Candle Light Service Wednesday, December 24 at 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. and extend an invitation to all that would like to attend. The Fellowship of Living Faith Church is located at 206 S. Main in Lindsay. For more information contact Pastor Bryce Schaffer at 756-5118.

Love In Action Volunteers are still doing hair at Lindsay Manor Nursing Home. The are also focusing on the needs of the residents. Some residents have expressed an interest in a Wii. Any donations would greatly be appreciated. Contact Rhonda at 756-4334. Thank you! Shirlean Waystaff.

St. Peter's Catholic Church will have their communion service December 14 at 5 p.m. instead of 11 a.m. The service will be followed by Christmas dinner and a penny social to raise money for nun's retirement.

Gospel Singing, sponsored by the Men's Ministry at Christian Life Church, 820 S. Walnut in Pauls Valley. Saturday, December 13th from 6-9 pm. Open to all that like to sing or hear good Gospel Music. Christmas Eve Mass will be at St. Peter's Catholic Church at 10 p.m. Everyone is welcome to experience the "reason for the season".

Dr. Marilynn Hines Leaving Main Clinic

According to Carrie Arter, office manager of the Main Clinic, Dr. Marilynn Hines will see her last patient in Lindsay December 23, 2008. After 16 years of service in Lindsay, Dr. Hines is taking down her shingle.

Dr. Hines is leaving her practice due to continued cut backs to health care service providers by insurance companies, Medicare and Medicaid. It has become economically unfeasible to continue private practice in rural Oklahoma without the fiscal support of a hospital or other health care service industry.

Dr. Hines' Physician Assistant, Jere Claunch, PA-C, will continue to see patients and is interviewing for oversight by a new physician. PA's are medical service providers who examine, diagnose, and treat patients under the direct supervision of an MD or DO.

As of publication time, Jere had narrowed it down to three possible candidates and will keep the community informed of further developments as they arise.

Christmas at the Mansion was held recently. Pike's Peak School, above, was open to the public. The School has been renovated and brought back to the way it used to be. (Photo by Sheryl Kochert).

Lindsay United Methodist Church Approved To Distribute Free Food

The Lindsay United Methodist Church has recently been approved by the Regional Food Bank of Oklahoma to distribute free food items to families that qualify according to certain income levels. This program is just getting started so the amount of food to be distributed is limited. If anyone is interested in receiving assistance please follow these guidelines.

To qualify each family must have an income level that falls below the amount listed on the chart.

Once you meet the income qualifications call the Lindsay United Methodist Church at 756-2382 and reserve your pickup. For the month of December the pickup date will be Friday, December cannot hold reservations. The Church will offer assistance until the food supplies are exhausted. If one misses the deadline please watch for future monthly dates or call the church for details.

Leopards Welcome New Coach Look To Continue Winning Ways

The Lindsay Leopards began their season December 9 under the new head coach, Gavin Wilson. He is not new to the Leopard program, being an alumnus of Lindsay, nor is he new to a head coaching position. Assisting this year will be Scott Baade, who had previously assisted with the Leopardettes.

According to Coach Wilson, we can expect very little change except to build on the program established by Dan Chapman. He is thankful to be here and for the opportunity to continue the tradition. Plans are to establish team goals prior to the first game against Wynnewood and to expect improvement throughout the three phases of the season: before Christmas, after Christmas, and the play-offs.

His philosophy is to utilize the quality in depth of players this year's team possesses by pushing the transition offense. Fresh players, pressure defense, and fast tempo should create organized chaos for the quick, easy shots. And when that is not possible, move into a very deliberate offense, working for the higher percentage shot while maintaining control of the ball more minutes than the opponents.

This year's Leopards have a lot of depth, with talented, athletic young men ready to contribute their skills in a winning season. Their work is set before them as they adapt to a different style of play under Coach Wilson, but improvement is expected in shooting and defense as the year progresses. It is always tough when 11 of 24 players come off the football field, straight to the hardwood to perfect their shots and footwork in a limited amount of time.

Leopards are loaded with 10 seniors. Three returning starters include Doug Ezell, Jesi Millsap, and Jordan Lukens. Ezell has the best perimeter shot. Millsap is very physical, plays bigger than his height, and is an exceptional leader, recovering from a football injury. Big things are expected from Lukens as a carryover from his football success. Josh Christie is very quick and an improved shooter. Avery Robinson will provide depth as a versatile player. Tim Hamilton, currently out with an injury, is very athletic and will provide leadership in the point guard position. Keaton Peery runs well and has excellent jumping skills. Jacob Harris, who saw a lot of action last year, returns to contribute his three point shooting talents. Tim Bohannon, is the mountain in the middle, with a good understanding and attitude about the game, and has good hand for his big stature. Brandon Selman is another good shooter with a winning spirit.

On the 67th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Glenn Webb donated copies of the Sunday, December 7, 1941 Honolulu Star to the Lindsay Community Historical Society. The headline reads: WAR! OAHU BOMBED BY JAPANESE PLANES. The papers relate events of the early morning surprise attack on the island's defense areas that drew the United States into WWII. Glenn was a member of the 5th Air Force that served in the South Pacific. He was in Okinawa at the time of the attack. Pictured with Mr. Webb is LCHS representative Jo Ann Wilson. Billy To Chair General Government Committee

A legislator from southern Oklahoma has been named to fill the General Government Committee Chair.

State Rep. Lisa J. Billy (R- Purcell), who has previously served on the committee, was named to the post by House Speaker Chris Bengé (R- Tulsa).

"Rep. Billy has proven to be one of the most hard-working members of the legislature during her time in office," Bengé said. "I have no doubts whatsoever that she will do a great job heading up this committee."

Billy has served in the House of Representatives since 2004. During the past legislative session, Billy served on the Leadership

Lisa J. Billy team as Deputy Whip and Vice-Chair of the Majority Caucus. She also chaired the International, Federal

SMALL TOWN CAFES PART II

When Double A Perry closed his cafe in Bradley near the end of World War II, Dave and Esther Bomhak opened their cafe. Bomhak's Cafe was located in the last building on the south end of the row of rock buildings on the east side of Main Street. The cafe occupied the front of the building, and the family lived in the back of the building.

The cafe served the traditional cafe food for those years: hamburgers, fries, stew, chili, and plate lunches. A counter with stools ran down the center of the cafe. Several booths lined the south wall. Near the front on the south side was a jukebox, which featured a mix of the most popular country and pop song hits. One or two pinball machines stood near the front along the north wall. Near the large front window, an open flame gas heater drew people around it in cold weather. In the front window of the cafe was a former display shelf that became a window seat for people who were just loafing in the cafe. That window seat served as a reading chair for J.C. Simmons, one of the few Bradley boys who read books in public. I recall him sitting there for several afternoons reading John O'Hara's Butterfield 8. I also recall Jean Looney, a beautiful Bradley girl, sitting there one day in a one-piece swim suit, drawing considerable attention from several Bradley boys gathered around her. I also remember Dave Bomhak forcefully removing a drunk Bradley man from that seat and from the cafe as well.

Bomhak's Cafe served as the social center of Bradley in the late 1940s and early 1950s. My brother, A.W., spent many hours there courting Mary Ella Bomhak, whom he later married. The veterans returning from World War II found Bomhak's Cafe a convenient place to re-enter society after years away at war. My brother, Jim, and his friend, Ralph Morris Renner, spent long hours there with Jonnie Etta Hollis and Patsy Ruth Beverly, whom they later married. Sometimes some of the veterans would get loud and rowdy after too much to drink outside before coming into the cafe. Mrs. Bomhak would sternly ask them to leave. They always complied.

I recall a cold night in 1950 after a Bradley basketball game. The cafe was crowded with Bradley students. Hoss Crowe and I sat in a booth listening to the jukebox play Bob Wills' "Faded Love." Cack Roller was attacking the pinball machine in the corner. I still remember the comfortable feeling as the warm cafe, the friends, and the music provided a haven from the bitter cold outside. Bomhak's Cafe played a vital role during broomcorn season. Broomcorn Johnnies would flock into the cafe at noon, all of them hungry, thirsty, and impatient for service. Dave, Esther, and Mary Ella would rush out hamburgers, plate lunches, and large glasses of tea. A few days ago, my friend, Paul Osborn, and I were reminiscing about broomcorn Johnnies eating lunch at Bomhak's Cafe. We were still amazed at how many people they could feed during one noon meal. Everything had to be finished in one hour so the Johnnies could return for another hot afternoon in the sweltering broomcorn fields. Bomhak's Cafe closed not long before the Bradley tornado of March 13, 1953, which swept those rock buildings away. I was away in the Army when that tornado destroyed much of the Bradley I knew. But my younger school years are inextricably linked in my mind to that small town cafe in Bradley. I can still close my eyes and relive the sights, sounds, and smells that marked that social center of my boyhood years. Sometimes my sister-in-law, Mary Ella Bomhak Nye, and I reminisce about those years, that place, and the friends who shared those wonderful times with us.

Leopards

Junior members are Dakota Eledge, a very talented, athletic young man; Scott Hacker, a back-up point guard, who has a very competitive attitude; Stephon Bradley, a quick, agile defender, and Kurtis Schieman, who will provide post depth, competitive nature, and know only one speed, all out.

Sophomores comprise 10 more talented Leopards to round out this year's roster. Brennan Zurline will be starting as point guard, but expect versatility and assertive play from him. Zach Hibbard is highly skilled for his size. Carson Tate will be a defensive stopper with his tough demeanor. Tanner Mason, the tallest player at 6'5", will lend assistance in the post position with his abilities. Dustin Ezell will contribute his nimble ways with good shooting. Mason Baade has a lot of ability and smart game sense. Josh Lukens is another big, strong post player. Dylan Beil is small, but scrappy. Jake Carrol, recovering from injuries, is a new face from Pauls Valley, joining the Leopards for his first year. Chris Larrauri will be playing the guard position and is a steady defender.

Managers are Skylar Pracht, Clay Stone, Chase Freeman, and Tony Murphy will be running film.

Tastefully Oklahoma Cookbook Now Available

The Made in Oklahoma Coalition (MIO) announced today the launch of a cookbook featuring recipes using Made in Oklahoma products. Tastefully Oklahoma was produced by the MIO Coalition and features original recipes by Oklahoma City Chef and owner of The Coach House restaurant Kurt Fleischfresser and Tulsa cooking personality Kitchen Kimberley.

The cookbook is available at local grocery stores, Full Circle, Steve's Sundries, Barnes & Noble, Borders locations statewide and at www.barnesandnoble.com. For a complete list of participating retailers, please visit www.miocoalition.com.

Tastefully Oklahoma contains over 75 recipes featuring MIO products as well as preparation tips and mouthwatering color photos for a suggested retail price of $16.95.

Many recipes were provided by Fleischfresser, Kimberley and MIO companies. The book also features winning recipes from MIO's annual Recipe Round-Up contest, which received entries from more than 1,000 Oklahomans.

"It was a pleasure to partner with MIO on Tastefully Oklahoma," said Chef Kurt Fleischfresser, owner of the Coach House restaurant. "I have been passionate about supporting Made in Oklahoma products for many years. This cookbook will be a great way to share recipes highlighting locally processed products with folks across the state and encourage them to use MIO products when cooking."

With the tagline, "Good for you. Good for Oklahoma!" MIO's 126-page collection of recipes personifies the heart of Oklahoma and includes everything from appetizers to entrees and desserts. Favorites include Okie-Red Pork Tenderloin, Red Earth O'iginal Ribeyes with Glaze, Churnin' Day Kolaches, Minco Chocolate Delight and Land Run Sweet Biscuits, an authentic centennial recipe. Many of the entrees are paired with wines from Oklahoma vineyards like Grape Ranch in Okemah and Tres Suenos in Luther.

"Research shows that consumers want to buy made in Oklahoma products and support our local companies," said Richard Wasson, director for the MIO Coalition. "It's our job to ensure they are aware of who those companies are and the products they make. We're hoping that Tastefully Oklahoma will impact their buying decisions."

Tastefully Oklahoma was not only created to share Oklahoma culinary traditions but also to enhance consumer awareness of Made in Oklahoma products. The MIO Coalition is comprised of more than 30 Oklahoma food manufacturers who employ 19,500 Oklahomans statewide.

A portion of proceeds from the cookbook will benefit the Regional Food Bank of Oklahoma and the Community Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma.

Tall Tales

by Doyle Greteman

Superintendent, Lindsay Schools

This past Sunday, we were treated to another amazing performance by the Lindsay Vocal Students of Mr. Jess Young.

In last week's column, we talked about how impressive it is to see how Mr. Young utilizes so many students of diverse talents to pull off an entertaining production.

While sitting there being mesmerized by the unbelievable synchronization of this performance, my eyes suddenly wandered to the front of the stage, where the accompanist was playing.

Who else but Mrs. Alexia Herrin would be there, sacrificing her Sunday afternoon to assist the students with their music? This is the same lady who spends countless hours to prepare to accompany vocal students at contests.

My thoughts suddenly returned to an elementary production that was presented a few weeks ago by the third graders of Mrs. Herrin.

What was remarkable about this performance? Pretty much everything, but there was one aspect in particular that stood out and truly fascinated this old speech teacher.

It was the fact that every third grader, (yes, that's right, EVERY third grader, had a speaking part.

What do you suppose is the biggest fear of most people? You guessed it: standing up in front of a group and speaking.

But somehow, those who need to learn this skill the most are the very same ones who are hesitant to sign up for speech classes. It's that fear of the unknown that drives this hesitancy.

What we ultimately discover is that the only way to absolve ourselves of this fear is to actually do that thing we are most afraid to do: get up in front of people and speak. The more we do this, the easier it becomes.

If we can master this skill, it will be a very important stepping stone as we climb the hill to a successful career.

That's why we owe a big "Thank You" to Mrs. Herrin for her ability not only to recognize the importance of this skill, but to take the time and patience necessary to develop it in each one of our third graders.

They'll only be third graders once, (unlike Claude Cameron, who proudly proclaims that the best three years of his life were spent in the third grade.) However, they will be citizens all their lives: citizens who will need every available tool they can master in order to lead productive lives.

So, hats off to Mrs. Herrin, not only for putting up with Mr. Young, but also for emphasizing, as he does, the importance of integrating public speaking skills into our fine arts curriculum. Our students are better off because of the commitment they have.

MATC Holds Regional Leadership Session

The regional leadership serving all the communities in the Mid America Technology Center District held its second session for the 2008 - 2009 Class. The class loaded in vans and traveled to LaVille Inn in Davis. Board Members, Dan Asklund, Mid-America Tech Center, and James Powell of Walker & Sons, Newcastle, co-chaired the session by planning the agenda, coordinating the day's activities and facilitating throughout the day. Powell and Asklund were concentrating on leadership skills involving communication, team building and problem solving. After coffee and pastries at La Brue's, Tim Smith, Supervisor of Training & Development of the Wynnewood Refining, Co., gave an overview of Stephen Covey's book, 7 Habits of Highly Effective People and focused on Habit II, "Begin With the End in Mind."

The group continued on to the Arbuckle Mountains where they participated in the team development course at the Falls Creek "Watson Ropes Course." Through a series of activities and physical challenges, the leadership class participants developed through teaming their efforts, ideas and encouragement to successfully complete the course. The meal and snacks for the day were donated by the co-chairs, Powell and Asklund.

Leadership Mid America, Inc. is a non-profit organization formed by a group of business and industry individuals interested in promoting area leadership to communities in the Mid America district. The mission of Mid America Leadership is "to develop and unite regional leaders."

Christmas At the Mansion--

Christmas at the Mansion was held recently. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus were on hand to give a present to all the children who attended. Members of the family who built the mansion were also on hand to tell stories of their memories of the mansion. (Photos by Sheryl Kochert).

Turn off the highway and let's go down the Wallville Road. December 5, 2008. A cold, Friday night in Lindsay town. On the corner of Broomcorn Street a car peers into the night. The driver quietly watches the unfolding events with Main Street roped off like a crime scene. He awaits the beginning of the annual Lindsay Christmas parade. The man in the car is the famous owl man of the Wallville road fame. His family has chosen this night to travel to Arkansas. So he and his eight year old reporter-son and his friend Skylar Walker, a.k.a. Skywalker chose to report on the Christmas festivities. The owl man tries to be as inconspicuous as possible to avoid autograph hounds while his eight year old reporter and friend keep him in hot chocolate and information. They run the streets and the owl man is reminded of days when the Lindsay streets were his territory during the annual REC meeting of long ago. Radio station KBLP blared Christmas music into the night air and entertained the crowd that is gathering. The owl man hears Blue Christmas coming to his ears and thinks there must be some mistake, he always heard it was White Christmas, but he realizes the times they are a-changing. As the night begins closing in, families and friends pass the parked car not realizing they have just came near the owl man from down the Wallville Road.

Good day everybody, how do you do? Businesses are closing, workers are being laid off, the financial cruch is being felt around the world, it's a change you can believe in, legend #836.

The Wallville Veteran's Committee salutes Cpl. Chester Dean Dr. of World War II. A former P.O.W., passed away last week at 89. A good man to know. Our thoughts go out to the family.

From the Hunt's believe it or not. Dear Santa, I have been an extremely good boy this year and would like a rick or two or three of good burning wood and my name on the 100 billion dollar bailout list. We will leave you cookies, we can't afford the milk.

Your Friend,
The Owl Man

Greg Jensen, son of Barbara Jensen, of Antioch, OK, has been in the OKC hospital the report by Reverend Steve Mayhan has not been real good.

Hats off to Santa's helpers who must have worked overtime to help fill all the Christmas sacks given out at the Lindsay Christmas parade and there were many.

Winner of the roses, Joe and Latrella Ince, now of Kingfisher, OK. Celebrating 42 years of spooning and happy honeymooning this December 16. Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ince and Latrella was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Ezell.

Johnny Bob Williams and wife Bobbi wish to send out happy anniversary wishes to their children Tim and Libby Thomas. Just traveling along, singing a song, side by side this December 14.

Now, all you that have been naughty or nice or both, send your holiday news to RR 3 Box 222-A, Pauls Valley, OK 73075 or call 207-1691 or 3268. Beat the holiday rush.

Making a list and checking it twice, happy birthday Paul Pratt on the 12, Sandy Powers has a big one on the 13, John Brown on the 14, Jackie Stacy celebrates on the 18, Kylee Smith celebrates on the 16, Miss Margaret Travis parties on the 15, and having a big time this year, Delanya Holland and Silas Holland #1 party on the 17. Have a good one.

Wallville Free Holiness Church services, Sunday morning 10 a.m., Sunday evening, 6:30 p.m. and Wednesday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The Owl Man enjoyed a visit with Archie and Cathy Hassler December 5 at the Lindsay Gas-N-Go with their children the married type on hand.

Happy anniversary Mr. Cecil and Linnie Covel from down around Foster, OK, celebrating 39 big ones this September 16. Congratulations to you.

The Christmas cards begin to trickle in many thanks to Quinton and Shirley Taylor of Blanchard, Kirk and Sonya Palmer of Moore, OK and Michael Chris Knapp, our man of the world and from Crowe Mountain, AR, the McCutcheon family.

Alert-Jesse White, son of Robert White was seriously injured last week in a motorcycle accident having a run in with a barbed wire fence on the Antioch-Pauls Valley road. He was rushed to the Norman Municipal Hospital.

Glorious congratulations to Tyler and Nicole Mayhan on the birth of Brooke Anne, born December 5 and get this 10 pounds, 14 ounces, 22 inches long. Happy grandparents are Bruce and Pricilla Mayhan and Mr. and Mrs. Dallon Wright. Great grandmother are you know who.

With a cold front due in December 9, we thought it was already cold. This is the owl man saying enjoy the holidays and remember this is be kind to "Jean Price" week, a very patient lady. A flower child from way back.

This week's column has been brought to you by Winans Funeral Home of Maysville, Tubby and Bobbi Winans owner-operators and Dr. O.L. Huey Medical practice of Maysville. Many thanks for their support. And now, the rest of the story.

At or around 6:30 p.m., there was a blare from the police car and red and blue lights lit up the dark night and the parade was under way. There was a good crowd shivering along the sidewalks of Main Street. An ambulance crept by with sirens and light flashing as if on an emergency run. There were cycles and horses and car oh my! Then finally Santa and Mrs. Claus came by riding on the back of a vintage car, they really need to upgrade. The owl man smiles at the proceedings, then the parade is over. Santa and Mrs. Claus pass out sacks of goodies to the crowd. The Owl man reluctant to reveal his presence sits still and then the eight year olds appear loaded down with sacks. Another boy won a bicycle and the grin on his face was worth the trip. He borrowed the Owl man's cell phone to call home. The owl man and 8 year olds reved up the mootr and headed for the Gas-N-Go for a bite to eat. Despite parade night to the customers are few. Being careful not to reveal his true identity the owl man creeps around when an elderly gentleman spoke up and said "Aren't you Al Hunt's son". His secret found out he explained that he was in fact the one and only owl man. Come to find out the elderly gentleman was Archie Hassler and wife disguised as an old couple. Quietly they enjoyed their visit and Mr. Hassler says every week he likes to go down the Wallville Road.

Tales From Turkey

By: Amber Minson

There's not much going on around here now that the Thanksgiving festivities are over. That is, unless you count doctor and dentist appointments. That was pretty much the big event for us last week and this week isn't much different.

Part of our week last week was spent with Zach and Sam recovering from a wicked stomach virus of some sort. It floated itself across base and getting in the see a doc was nearly impossible. That's one of the drawbacks of a small base like this one; the resources are somewhat limited. I don't know how many doctors there are for certain, but I do know that unless it's an emergency or you are active duty personnel you can't get in to see a doctor for at least a couple of days. However, they get us all taken care of, even if it means working long hours. I'm very thankful for the medical personnel that we have here.

I'm sure there are some OU fans still pumped about the Sooners' big win in the Big XII Championship game last weekend. I know we are! We had to record the game and watch it Sunday morning because it didn't come on over here until 3am. But, we're glad we got to watch it and we're super excited for the big game in Miami!

I bet everyone has started their countdown for Christmas. We certainly have! Zach, Sam, and I didn't get to spend last Christmas together. Zach was already here in Turkey and Sam and I were still trying to get all of our stuff taken care of to leave! So, we celebrated Sam's first Christmas without Daddy. This year, however, we are very excited to get to spend Christmas together as a family for the first time since Sam was born.

Only a couple of weeks of shopping left, hope you've got all your goodies bought and wrapped and under the tree! Have a wonderful week! As always, thanks for reading, and until next time, God bless.

Oklahoma Ranks Fifth For Board Certified Teachers

State Superintendent Sandy Garrett today congratulated Oklahoma teachers for elevating the state to No. 5 in the nation in the percentage of its teachers - nearly 6 percent - who are National Board Certified. Only 2 percent nationally have the advanced credential.

The National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) today released the names of teachers (www.nbpts.org) who were awarded national certification for 2008 and indicated Oklahoma had the nation's 8th highest rate of increase of National Board Certified teachers. Moreover, with 324 new National Board Certified teachers, Oklahoma ranks 10th in the nation in the total number (2,307) of its teachers with the certification.

"We had a 12 percent increase in nationally certified teachers in one year, and National Board teachers now comprise nearly 6 percent of our teaching force," Garrett said. "This is quite an accomplishment. Only seven states can say more than 5 percent of their total teaching force is National Board Certified and Oklahoma is of them!"

Garrett lauded the National Board incentives program funded by the state Legislature as the engine for fueling Oklahoma's progress with National Board certification. The program provides an annual $5,000 bonus to any classroom teacher who holds the certification and works full-time in a public school. The certification is valid for 10 years before a teacher needs to reapply. State funds also provide for scholarships to the Education Leadership Oklahoma program, which assists teachers in applying for national certification - a process that takes most a year to complete.

The majority of National Board teachers in Oklahoma - nearly 60 percent -work in high-poverty, Title I-eligible schools. The districts with the highest number of National Board teachers are Tulsa (131), Edmond (112), Norman (107), Moore (93) and Oklahoma City (93). This is the first year Oklahoma City was among the state's top 5 school districts in the number of National Board teachers. Oklahoma City edged the Putnam City school district for the 5th position.

"As one of the early members of the NBPTS and as Oklahoma State Superintendent, I congratulate our newly certified National Board teachers and encourage all Oklahoma teachers to consider pursuing this worthy goal," Garrett said. "It is a time-consuming, rigorous process, to be sure, but it makes good teachers even better teachers and that's a winning situation for students and schools."

Be Smart About Holiday Spending

The holidays are a fun and exciting time of year, but they are also a time when many shoppers spend more than they can afford. Showing someone you care doesn't have to break the bank. The Oklahoma Society of Certified Public Accountants suggests using these savvy tips to rein in spending without feeling like a cheap-skate.

Make a list and check it twice. Many people spend as they go, buying presents when they see them and end up surprised when the bills arrive in January. This can be avoided by creating a list in advance of which people to buy gifts for, and what should be budgeted for each. Then, check this total against holiday savings to decide if spending adjustments need to be made.

Then, plan and purchase all the lower-cost items first. When moving on to higher-priced items, keep an eye out for sales and comparison shop to get the best prices. You may find getting those gifts on your list is less expensive than originally thought.

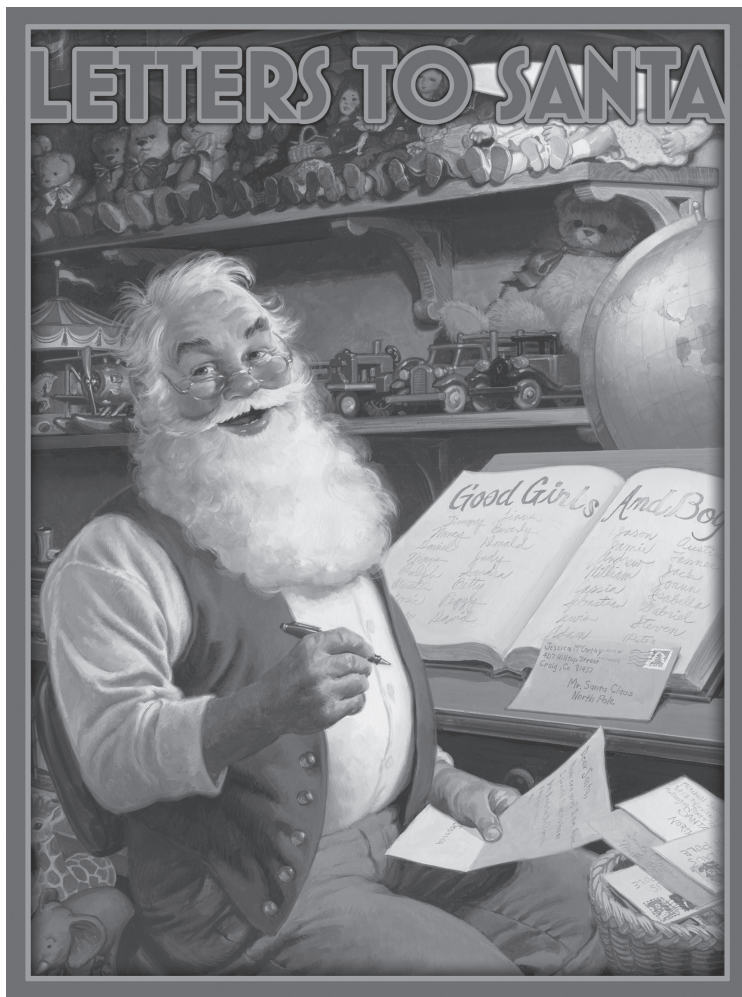

Be creative. Remember that thoughtfulness really does count. Instead of searching for one expensive present, save money — and give the perfect gift — by putting together a number of small items that relate to a loved one's special interest. Someone who truly loves chocolate, for example, might appreciate a small basket full of treats hand-chosen for them. Anyone with an interest in sewing or crafts could probably use a gift bag with a fresh stock of supplies for the New Year. By putting together inexpensive items, you can save money and show loved ones you care.

Hit the kitchen. If you are a good cook — or you simply have a foolproof recipe — gifts of food are popular and inexpensive. Whether it is a mixture for great holiday cookies or your grandmother's prize-winning banana bread, friends and family are sure to welcome the effort. Not a cook? Dig up those old family recipes that have received compliments over the years, write them out on pretty cards and tie them with a festive ribbon. These great gifts will spread the joy of delicious cooking throughout your circle of friends for years to come.

Good deeds are gifts, too. Some on your list may value a favor done more than any expensive present. Couples with young children would probably be delighted with a night of free babysitting or surprise a friend with a very busy schedule by offering help with household chores. Present each recipient with a fancy card describing the good deed promised. These sort of gifts cost practically nothing more than a few hours of your time, but they are greatly appreciated.

These ideas will help limit your spending during the busy holiday season, but a local CPA can offer great advice on how to manage money throughout the year.

OBITUARY

John E. Frady
1921-2008

Reverend John E. Frady, 87, Norman, was born May 10, 1921, to John Edward Sr. and Ollie Mae Frady in Leonard, OK.

He died in his home, surrounded by his loved ones, and moved to his heavenly home Wednesday, November 26.

Reverend Frady grew up in Bixby, OK, graduated from Bixby High School, went to Business College, continued taking college classes and was an avid lifelong learner. His interests in computers, photography, astronomy and many other subjects, led his grandson to describe him as a true Renaissance man when writing a high school paper.

He was an ordained minister with the Assemblies of God over sixty years and a Presbyterian and Oklahoma District Board member for over twenty years. He served churches in Tamaha, Porum, Checotah, Okmulgee, Wilburton, Tulsa, and served Shepherd's Place (formerly Faith Assembly) after retiring from 21 years at Lindsay First Assembly.

Reverend Frady is survived by his daughter and son-in-law, Marcia Marie and Reverend John L. Gifford of Norman; two grandchildren, John Mark Gifford and Marcy Leigh Porter, three great grandchildren, Isaac Leigh Gifford and Elizabeth Marie Gifford and Brittini Jones.

He was preceded in death by his wife of 53 years, Gladys Marie Stricker Frady, and his parents.

He leaves many friends who have been deeply influenced forever by the lasting impact of his ministry.

Funeral Services were held at 10 a.m., Tuesday, December 2, 2008, at the Havenbrook Funeral Home Chapel with Reverend Franklin Cargill officiating. Interment followed at 3:30 P.M., Tuesday, December 2, 2008, at Bixby Cemetery in Bixby, OK. Services were under the direction of Havenbrook Funeral Home of Norman.
